INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE MEETING

Before looking for your soulmate, it is essential to dedicate time to self-knowledge. Ask yourself about your passions, goals, and desires in life. What do you value in a relationship? Reflecting on these questions can help you identify what you really want in your soulmate.

Create a detailed list of the characteristics and qualities that are important to you in a partner. Additionally, consider aspects such as values, shared interests and life goals. The more specific you are, the easier it will be to find your soulmate.

Participating in activities you love is a great way to meet people with similar interests. Additionally, get involved in groups, clubs, or events that bring you into contact with new people. Your soulmate can be anywhere, but you're more likely to find them when you're doing things you're passionate about.

Remember that finding your soulmate can be a journey that takes time. Be willing to meet different people and don't be discouraged if you don't find the right person right away. Sometimes the best connections take a little time to develop.

Communication is fundamental in any relationship. Be clear about your intentions and desires, and be willing to listen carefully to what the other person has to say. Open communication and empathy are the foundation of healthy relationships.
